THE COVER

WE ARE CONCERNED FOR PEACE — this year's commencement exercises theme, is well illustrated by Galen Rei Albano, our artist. As another school year ends, he, together with his fellow graduates, expresses his desire to face another new beginning soon with peace from within himself and from his fellowmen.

Goodbye, Elementary!

Goodbye, Elementary!

Well, it's time to bid farewell to elementary and on to High School. Time flies when one is really having fun. I could still remember my Prep days, the childish pranks I used to play on my friends, and even teachers. Even though those days are gone the memories are still etched in my head and heart and they will never leave me.

We have already passed and have survived seven years of hard work and determination; only four more years in High School, and then College. Time is really fast. But we must not forget all the people behind these-people who helped and encouraged us-our parents, teachers, friends and relatives. And most of all, God! Without Him we couldn't have possibly done all these.

At this point, I know I have reached only half of my goal. I only wish I could finish the rest of my dreams and ambitions. Goodbye, Elementary! Hello, High School!

THE SCHOOL YEAR THAT WAS...

Time no longer runs fast; it flies. It seems like it was only yesterday. . .

In the beginning of the schoolyear we saw NEW things, NEW uniforms, NEW books and school materials, NEW classmates, NEW faces.

Days pass by and assignments, reports, projects and paperwork pile up on our desks. Others are strong enough to stand the challenge; others still try hard.

As the schoolyear ends, students strive to do their final kicks to get honors, or simply just to pass.

Now, graduation is just around the corner. This graduation marks the end of our childish ways and the beginning of another challenge. Which is A NEW START, A NEW BEGINNING.

Fellow Graduates. . . Congratulations!
